ABSTRACT

A technique for binning aperiodic latency sample data using a data representation called latency band graphs. A fluid flow analysis produces

5   a small, fixed size set of automatically generated bins dependent only on the timeline defined by periodic traffic. The compact number of bins yields a parameterized latency representation suitable for real-time estimation and goodness-of-fit tests.

10